Mission Statement as of May 2013

To provide a high-quality education where each child's academic, and social/emotional skills are developed. Our school will strive to build collaborative relationships whereby teachers, parents, students and community will take ownership in the educational process in order to ensure the life-long success of every student.

School Priorities as of May 2013

Description	Rationale
Provide intervention strategies for students in reading and math who are identified by assessments administered at the beginning of the school year and monitor the progress of these students throughout the year.	This will inform teachers and students of specific skills needing to be worked on which will in turn improve the students' academic performance.
Establish a supportive culture that utilizes REACH (classroom observations), and data from student learning to support teachers in improving their practice.	Offering teachers constructive feedback about their instructional practice utilizing real data derived from observations using the framework for teaching, and student performance will present opportunities for them to improve their teaching and students will benefit by being placed on the path to success in college and in their careers.
Teachers and administrators work collaboratively to construct a uniform understanding of the Common Core State Standards (CCSS) and how to properly implement them in their lessons for the purpose of increasing academic achievement of the students.	By integrating rigorous standards into lessons, students will be exposed to a curriculum that has depth and one that will allow them to have a stronger knowledge base that will enable them to be prepared for high school. Being adequately prepared for high school places the students on a path to be college and career ready.
Build and maintain strong relationships with families and the community.	Having strong relationships with families and the community will positively engage these individuals for the purpose of contributing, supporting and enhancing our instructional programs and extra-curricular activities and functions.
