School Priorities as of May 2013

Description	Rationale
Development of a CCSS aligned curriculum and instruction.	CCSS is a research-based effective practice that provides the level of rigor necessary to ensure that KPHS students graduate with a diploma that reflects college and career readiness.
Implementation of strategic interventions for students based on ongoing analysis of data and teacher reflection.	A systematic approach to analyzing data on an ongoing basis in order to make adjustments to their focus and to target supports is a critical component of successful school leadership. Whenever possible, this approach should be applied in multiple instances and in multiple environments to ensure access of information to all participants.
Post-secondary and personal development supports that are addressed in a variety of educational settings, with Advisory serving as the core activity to address related goals.	The success of students in college and career is contingent upon educating the whole child. While the post-secondary and personal development needs of students should be addressed school-wide, Advisory provides a focused approach and highly supportive setting for student planning, preparation, participation, and performance in a areas related to personal development and college and career aspirations.
A professional culture of collaboration, reflection, and accountability exists in a variety of teams and includes parents and community.	A professional culture is the core of decision-making, team processes, and effectiveness. A professional culture fosters ownership and increased opportunities for distributive leadership.
